FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Local Families Talk to Experts at Legal Aid of Southern Nevada and Center for American Progress About Nevada's Housing Crisis

What the eviction moratorium reinstatement means to those facing eviction

(Las Vegas)- Make It Work Nevada hosts a conversation on the 3rd Wednesday of every month focused on the housing issues and struggles of underserved neighborhoods. Tonight will be an in-depth discussion about Governor Sisolak's recent eviction moratorium extension and what it means to families facing eviction.

What: An in-depth discussion about affordable housing, tenants rights, the recent eviction moratorium extension and how to help families facing eviction.

When: December 16, 2020; 5:30 p.m.

Where: Facebook Live at <https://www.facebook.com/MIWNV>

Who: Families affected by recent mass evictions and Make It Work Nevada's Organizing Manager, A'Esha Goins, will join Bailey Bortolin from Legal Aid of Southern Nevada and Jaboa Lake from Center for American Progress to discuss the eviction moratorium and what we can do to keep families housed.

Why: 218,000 renter households are experiencing a rent shortfall and may potentially be facing eviction. We are having this conversation so local residents can share their experiences and receive vital information about how their families can move forward.
